

Countable and Uncountable Nouns

- Can you provide examples of countable nouns and uncountable nouns?
- Give examples of countable nouns that can become uncountable when used in a different context.
- Explain the concept of pluralizing countable nouns. How does it differ from uncountable nouns?
- What is the role of articles (a, an, the) in relation to countable and uncountable nouns?

<https://www.grammarism.com/countable-uncountable-exercises/> much/many/a lot of/ plenty of

- Can you explain the difference between "much" and "many" in terms of the types of nouns they are used with?
- In what situations would you use "a lot of" in a sentence? Provide examples.
- How does the usage of "plenty of" differ from "a lot of" in expressing quantity?
- What do we usually use with questions and negatives?
- What do we use in affirmatives in formal and informal styles?

<https://agendaweb.org/exercises/grammar/countable-uncountable/many-much-a-lot-of-test-2.htm>

little/ a little/ few/ a few

- What do we use with uncountable nouns?
- What do we use with countable nouns?
- Can you differentiate between "little" and "a little" when expressing quantity?
- How is the usage of "a few" different from "few" in expressing quantity? Provide examples for clarity.

<https://www.focus.olsztyn.pl/en-few-a-few-little-a-little-exercises.html>

some/any/ no

- When do you use "some" in a sentence, and how does it differ from using "any"? Provide examples.
- In what situations can we use "some" in questions?
- In what situations can we use "any" in affirmatives?
- In what contexts would you use "no" in a sentence? How is it different from using "some" or "any"?

<https://www.focus.olsztyn.pl/en-english-some-any-no-exercises.html>

enough/ hardly any

- In what situations would you use "enough" in a sentence? How does it convey sufficiency?
- When is "hardly any" used, and how does it differ from expressing "enough"? Provide examples to illustrate.

<https://www.usingenglish.com/quizzes/239.html>